Which two is it going to be?

There are enough seats for two; one goes home

By KAREN ANGELO

WILMINGTON - On Tuesday evening, the candidates for the Wilmington Board of Selectmen answered tough questions from reporters and citizens during Candidates Night 2005, sponsored jointly by Wilmington Community Television (WCTV) and the League of Women Voters.

The debate was moderated by Town Moderator James Stewart and provided residents with an opportunity to understand the viewpoints and credentials of each candidate. The new library proposal, the safety of Wilmington's drinking water, and the potential development of a hotel in North Wilmington were just some of the topics tackled by the selectmen candidates.

Three candidates—Michael V. McCoy, Raymond Lepore, and Ann Yurek—are vying for the two selectmen seats that will be up for grabs in the upcoming Town Election Saturday, April 16, 2005.

McCoy is a long-time member of the Board and is the current Chairman and Lepore is wrapping up his first three-year term. Yurek is looking to win her first spot on the Board. Voters will determine which one of the three will walk away without a seat.

The candidates split over the library issue, with Yurek standing alone in her support of a new library. McCoy and Lepore believe the time is not right to ask residents to carry the additional tax burden that would go along with a new building.

The candidates' answer to the question "when did you last visit the library" was consistent with their positions. McCoy said that he visited the library three years ago when running for office to conduct some research. Lepore visited the library approximately two months ago to attend meeting related to the proposal. Yurek visited the library three days ago and described herself as a frequent user.

"When I get the opportunity to vote for it, I will. All the residents will have the chance to vote which ever way they feel," Yurek said.

Although all candidates professed belief that the town currently provides clean water, there was some dissent on the benefits of utilizing MWRA water.

"We lost our greatest natural resource to polluters but our water is now clean," McCoy stated.

"We do need to bring in water from the MWRA," Yurek said. "We hurt the ground water supply but we are drinking safe water."

According to Lepore, it is important that the Town eventually have one supply of water. "If we have multiple sources of water, then we're unsure as to how all the chemicals used to treat the water effect our immune systems," Lepore said.

Twenty-one Wilmington families are involved in the Massachusetts Childhood Cancer Study, which is attempting to determine whether a link exists between those diagnoses and the contamination in Wilmington.

For the benefit of those families, and others, a new neighborhood group called United Neighbors Invest in the Truth for Youth (UNITY) has banded together legally to uncover the truth of the matter. Candidates were asked how they would

275th change of venue

Have a ball!

...just don't call it a ball

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The location of the 275th Anniversary Dinner and Dance has been moved from the Shriners Auditorium to the Casa di Fior. All other aspects of the April 9th event, which begins with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at 6:00 p.m., remain unchanged.

The 275th Committee hopes, however, that public perception of the event may change somewhat. They fear that the phrase "Anniversary Ball" may have produced a slanted and inaccurate image of the celebration resulting in the lackluster ticket sales.

"This is not a black-tie affair and we hope that wasn't what hurt it," said Jack Cushing, Chairman of the 275th Committee. "It's not dungarees and t-shirts either. It's a jacket and tie type of event."

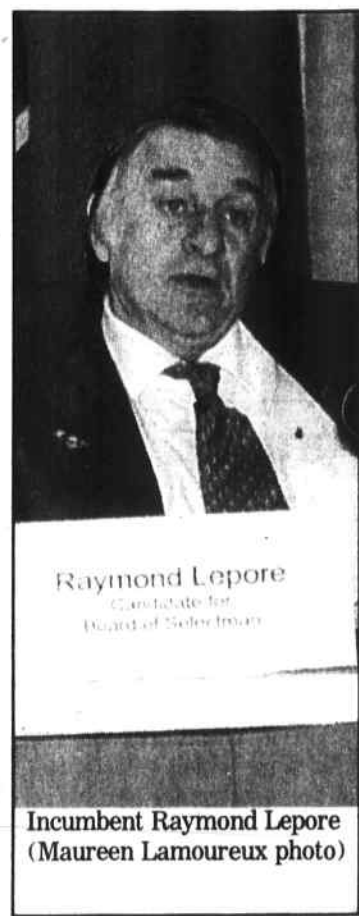

The concept of "lackluster ticket sales" is certainly subject to interpretation. Most organizations would be thrilled to have sold nearly 300 tickets, as the 275th Committee has, but the Committee's expectations were far higher. No less than a

Extreme makeover for the Bond Collection

Join the Historical Society at the Harnden Tavern this Sunday

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Photographs from Wilmington's Bond Collection are getting an impressive restoration thanks to the diligent work of dedicated volunteers and a little bit of 21st century technology.

The infamous and voluminous Bond Collection includes photographs and documents, some of which date back to 1685, that were originally compiled by Arthur Thomas Bond during the 1800's as he prepared to write a comprehensive history of the Town of Wilmington.

Using the original 19th century glass plate negatives, Historical Commission member Bonnie Smith was able to enhance the images to levels beyond anyone's expectations. In one photograph of a Wilmington home, for instance, Smith was able to improve the clarity to such a level that an entire aspect of the image was revealed for the first time since it was originally shot. A physical print of the image exists, but the 20th century technology had not been able to reveal a group of people sitting on the porch.

"I couldn't believe it when I saw those people on the porch," Smith said. "These people had

Ready for the Boston Marathon

Andrea Gillis prepares for the run of her life

By MIKE LANE

WILMINGTON - It was a 10 mile run on a Sunday in early December that inspired Andrea Gillis to take on the Boston Marathon this coming April 18th.

Gillis, 41, a resident of North Wilmington has been running road races for 25 years. She usually runs 10K (6.2 miles) races or five mile races, but was motivated after that Sunday.

"I never thought I could run 10 miles and feel great afterwards," Gillis said.

She has run in the Tufts road race many times, the Feaster five, a race in Andover on Thanksgiving, the Irish-American road race in Woburn, the Fourth of July race in Wilmington and other races.

Since Gillis decided late to run the marathon she didn't have success getting on any running teams when she tried to contact different organizations. She had decided to run it without any affiliation, but then in the second week of March one of the runners on the Brigham and Women's Hospital team dropped out of the race, leaving a spot open for Gillis.

U.S. Marine comes home to Wilmington

By KAREN ANGELO

WILMINGTON - Last Friday evening, family members and friends gathered to recognize and thank Matt Meuse, a 1998 Wilmington High School graduate, for his four years of military service as a Marine with missions in Iraq and Liberia.

Corporal Meuse, 25-year old son of Ken and Donna Meuse, enlisted in the Marines at the age of 20 a year before 9/11. He could never have anticipated what awaited him and his fellow comrades and admits that more than anything else the experience has aged him.

"They say that for every year you're in the Marines, you age three," Meuse said. "In my mind, I've aged a lot more than that."

On March 5, 2003, Matt left Camp LeJeune in North Carolina, and was deployed to the coast of Liberia in Africa aboard a naval vessel. The Marines' mission was to help West African peacekeepers prevent a civil war in the region. They waited on the ship for weeks before receiving the orders to go ashore. From the ship, with the aid of night-vision goggles, Meuse could see active gunfire on the beach as he and the other Marines prepared to carry out their orders. The short journey from ship to shore carried the scariest moments that Matt was to experience as he readied himself for a landing similar to that of Normandy Beach during World War II.

Fortunately, the shooting had stopped and Meuse's unit was greeted by civilians grateful to see the U.S. troops.

"Just our presence stopped what was going on," Matt explained.

There tends to be a lot of downtime on a ship and thoughts of home constantly played in his mind.

"I was away from the U.S. for 9 months and three days and the most difficult part for me were my memories of home," said Meuse.

It was while making his way back to North Carolina in October 2003 that he met his fiancé, Laura Burris, also a Corporal in the Marines. The two will be married in May 2005. Laura has an 18-month old son, Brett.

No one could be more proud of Matt Meuse than his father Ken, a Vietnam Navy veteran. It can be nerve wracking not to know where your son is being deployed while hearing news reports of conflicts, but Ken always maintained confidence in his son's wellbeing.

"Because of what I went through with my own military experience, I knew that Matt's strong character was just made stronger with military training," Ken said. "You can call it blind pride I guess, but I knew that he'd make it home safely."

While he was away, Ken and Donna enjoyed hearing their son's stories. For instance, Lauren Sullivan and David Fielding are two of the students in Mrs. Gravalles's class. Students at The West Intermediate School in Wilmington collected Pennies for Patients to benefit The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society during the month of March. After three weeks of students bringing their spare change to school, the total was $3122.93! They would like to say a special thanks to Stoneham Bank and CoinStar for counting all the coins. Behind them is a bulletin board where we graphed each classroom's donations so the children could see where their classroom stood on a daily basis. It was a great visual incentive.

The top fundraising class was Mrs. Gravalles's class. They raised over $500.00 and won the pizza party awarded by the society. "I am so proud of our students" said Mr. Gorham, school principal at the West Intermediate. "They did a great job of giving selflessly and they really understood the mission of the Society and what the money is used for."

Masonic Child Identification Program coming to Wilmington

CHIP - The Masonic Child Identification Program is coming to the Public Safety Building (Police/Fire Dept.) in Wilmington on Saturday, April 2, 2005.

Massachusetts Freemasons invite children, age 18 and younger to participate in a comprehensive Child Identification Program at the Public Safety Building, Church Street on Saturday, April 2, 2005 from 10:00 A.M. until 2:00 P.M. Each child will have a brief videotape interview, will be fingerprinted by police personnel, and will have a "Toothprint" made by professional dental personnel. All materials are given to the parents for safekeeping. No copies are kept on file and the program is free to all.

This CHIP event will be conducted by members of Friendship Masonic Lodge of Wilmington in cooperation with the Massachusetts Dental Society, and the Wilmington Police Department. It is estimated that over 80,000 children have already participated in Masonic Child Programs (CHIP) throughout Massachusetts.

The Toothprint™ impression is a relatively new means of identification where the child bites down on a wafer, making a permanent, archivable record of their teeth. Toothprints were developed by Dr. David Tesini of Framingham, a pediatric dentist who developed Toothprints as another means of identifying a child that fingerprints alone may not guarantee.

According to the FBI's Peter Banks and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, when a Toothprint™ is taken, sufficient proteins remain in the saliva on the wafer from which a DNA test can be successfully performed for yet a second means of identification from the Toothprint. He also stated that, since the Toothprint wafer is sealed in a "zipper"-type plastic bag, enough scent remains for a trained dog to identify and track it.

Masonic Child Identification programs are held periodically throughout Massachusetts and may be sponsored by any group but are generally sponsored by local Masonic Lodges as part of their community service programs. Many school officials have requested that the program be brought into the school systems in their municipalities.

DON'T MAKE THESE DUMB MISTAKES

• Before you send in your tax return, make sure that it, and everything with it, is correct. Common errors can be red flags.

• Is it the right name? If marriage or divorce has caused a name change, notify the Social Security Administration promptly. Meanwhile, put both names on the tax return.

• Don't omit Social Security or Tax ID numbers of dependents or exes if claiming deductions for dependents or alimony.

• Incorrect 1099? Get a corrected one. Or report the income, then subtract a correcting amount, and add an explanatory note.

• Retirement income? Don't forget to file 1099-R with it.

• Deducting charitable donations? Be sure to document everything.

• Does your check list the payer's (and spouse's) name and Social Security number, plus the tax form and tax period it's for?

• Did you really file? Get a dated certified mail receipt.

• How many envelopes? Never put multiple filings in one envelope.

Letters to the editor

Local Heroes Update

Dear Editor,
It has been an unbelievable couple of weeks for Local Heroes!

The committee was invited to the State House to meet Governor Mitt Romney. Also, a generous donation of $1,500.00 was given by the Ahern Family Charitable Foundation to help with the cost of postage. Because of the wonderful support from so many organizations as well as the communities, Local Heroes has been able to ship 521 packages since November 3, 2004, including 37 this past week alone with a $570.00 postage bill.

A special thank: to Girl Scout

Troop #718 who donated 12 cases of cookies!

Local Heroes will continue to ship packages to our local servicemen and women to show our support to these brave men and women as well as helping their families back here at home.

Thank you to all of our supporters and please continue to donate the many needed items. The drop off boxes and lists of items needed are at Lucci's and at Market Basket in Wilmington. These items are very much appreciated overseas.

Yurek no friend to activists

Dear Editor,
If you feel that you can drink from your tap today, remember it was the "activists" who forced the DEP to do additional testing which discovered NDMA. Mrs. Yurek has opposed the activists writing numerous letters undermining them and calling them names such as "pit bulldogs with lipstick" to state agencies who were making important decisions regarding our Town.

If you are pleased that new bylaws are in place to prevent our Town from being dumped on with contaminated soils from 21E sites in other Towns, remember that Mrs. Yurek voted against all three of these bylaws.

If you work for the Town, you should know that Mrs. Yurek is in favor of decreasing Town employee benefits as a way of reducing costs.

If you are one of the families with children who have cancer or if your heart goes out to those who are suffering or if you are involved with the recently formed UNITY - remember that Mrs. Yurek questions the validity of there being a cancer concern in the community - even after the Massachusetts Department of Public Health said there was an increase in cancer in two census tracts in Wilmington.

I have spent much of my life proving that women are capable of leadership. So it is with no special satisfaction that I say, Mrs. Yurek does not deserve a single vote in the upcoming Town Election.

Matt says thank you

On Friday evening, March 29, 2005 family and friends gathered at the Meuse's to welcome me and my fiancée, Laura Burris, home from active duty with the USMC.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Selectman Newhouse and Veterans Agent Lou Cimaglia for their surprise presentation to me regarding my service to our country and the Town of Wilmington. My fiancée and I were honored and grateful. My father was especially grateful to Lou for his time. "Veterans all over the country need to hear from their agent and Lou represents a new era of thoughtfulness and care to our returning vets." A most sincere thanks to the Town Crier for their reporter, Karen Angelo and photographers, Paul Chinappi and Maureen Lamoureux.

Respectfully, and Semper Fi,
Corporal Matthew Meuse;

Lepore Truly cares

To the Editor:
During a time in which we are often surrounded by dishonesty and uncertainty, I feel fortunate to have a father who I consider to be a positive role model. My father has taught me many important values such as honesty, hard work and compassion. By his example, I was shown that through hard work and persistence, it is possible to achieve anything. As my father served as a selectman in the town of Wilmington for the past three years, many of these values were reflected in his work as a selectman. After residing in Wilmington for all of his life and owning a business in this town, Raymond Lepore truly cares about Wilmington and all of its residents. As many important issues continue to emerge in Wilmington, we need a strong, honest and trustworthy person representing the people of this town. Not only will Raymond Lepore work hard for the best interest of the people who live in Wilmington, but also will maintain and uphold the positive morals and values, which are embedded within this town. I hope many residents will join me on April 16th in voting to re-elect my father, Raymond Lepore as a selectman in the town of Wilmington.

Sincerely,
Jodi Lepore

Setting the record straight

Dear Editor,
William (Billy) Hill of 125 Aldrich Road would like to maintain your respect and his dignity now that the false allegations of the assault and battery charges that were put forth against him by Theresa Hill of 125 Aldrich Road, Wilmington, on August 27, 2004 were dismissed. Justice was served on March 23, 2005 and the charge was dismissed without a cause.

Thank you,
Billy Hill

(editor's note: Mr. Hill provided the Town Crier with a court document, dated March 23, 2005, which stated that the charge against him of assault and battery was "dismissed upon failure to prosecute.")

YUREKa for Yurek

Dear Editor,
I see Ann Yurek has a degree from Boston College and a background in finance. YUREKa!!! What a breath of fresh air that would be on the Board of Selectmen.

Well, it looks like I won't be making it out to Fruita, Colorado for the big "Mike the Headless Chicken Festival" in May. According to my wife, it's "stupid." She thinks it's a waste of time and money and doesn't want me to go. That, as far as I can see, is the biggest drawback to marriage. Rules. For instance; apparently I am "forbidden" from growing mutton chops. That's right; no mutton chops for me. I discovered that rule quite recently and according to advice from my attorney, I should let it go. He further advised me to consider buying a set of false mutton chops that can be pasted on to my face and then removed whenever necessary.

For those of you unfamiliar with Mike the Headless Chicken, allow me to enlighten you. I have been made aware, incidentally, that regular readers of my column assume that I am prone to stretching the truth. I assure you that everything in this column relative to Mike the Headless Chicken is true and can be verified by visiting www.miketheheadlesschicken.org or by checking the calendar of events at www.fruita.org, the official homepage of Fruita, Colorado.

In September of 1945, Clara Olsen sent her husband Lloyd Olsen out to the chicken coop to pick out a nice bird for the family's evening meal. It could probably be assumed that Lloyd was, like me, forbidden from having mutton chops.

At any rate; back in the 1940's there were no Market Baskets or even Lucci's close to the Olsen's farmstead in Colorado and they were apparently forced to do really disgusting things in order to eat. Lloyd grabbed the closest rooster along with his trusty ax and took care of business.

It is true that chickens will run around for a few seconds immediately following their own decapitation before realizing that they are, in fact, dead and should probably stop all the fuss and just go ahead and lie down. Mike, however, was no ordinary chicken.

Yes, Mike ran around the yard like a chicken with his head cut off, because that is exactly what he was, but as the initial shock of the situation wore off he chose not to settle down and die. Lloyd waited patiently for the ceremonial dance to end, but as he glanced up from his watch he noticed that Mike had gone back to mingling with the other chickens, sans head of course.

Apparently, Lloyd was a very difficult man to impress. According to the account posted on the official website; Lloyd left Mike to figure it out for himself and didn't see him again until the next morning. There is no mention of what Lloyd and Clara had for dinner or whether he had mentioned this oddity to his wife at all. As far as I know Lloyd grabbed the next closest chicken and lopped his head off with much more success.

Lloyd was a practical man and when he found Mike the next morning, sleeping with his unattached head under one wing, Lloyd decided that, "Goshdarnit, if that bird wants to live this badly I am going to help it."

I assume that is what Lloyd said according to the general tone of the story. If I were to happen upon a headless bird snoring happily and hanging on to its skullpiece like it was the Headless Horseman from Sleepy Hollow I wouldn't be quite so calm. I'd be doing an unexpected load of whites in the washing machine and calling on the church to exorcise the devil from my chicken coop.

But not good ole' Lloyd. Clever man that he was, he picked up the closest eyedropper and began feeding Mike water and grain through his esophagus. According to the story, it was right about now that Lloyd realized Mike was "special."

Scientists at the University of Utah determined that he (by he, I am referring to Mike, not Lloyd) had retained one ear and enough of his brain stem after the "ax incident" to enable him to function quite well. The ax blade had barely missed his jugular and a well-placed blood clot kept him from bleeding to death.

Mike lived for 18 months without a head and acclimated well, though he admittedly never did quite as well with the female chickens as he once had. He continued to strut around the yard, pecking at the ground and preening at his feathers. Mike grew from 2.5 pounds at the time of his decapitation, to nearly 8 pounds. Hey, when you've got no head, why worry about your figure?

Lloyd didn't need an ax to chop off his head to recognize a good thing. He started traveling the country with "The Headless Wonder Chicken" and charging happy rednecks $.25 for a peek at Mike. Mike even received spreads in Time Magazine and in Life Magazine, but declined a nude, though fairly artistic, lay out for Playgirl.

Good times can't last forever. Tragedy struck while the Olsens were in a motel in the Arizona desert. Lloyd and Clara were awakened in the middle of the night by the sound of Mike choking. Lloyd was unable to find the eyedropper in time to clear Mike's throat and he passed on (Mike, not Lloyd). Lloyd and Clara helplessly watched their winning lottery ticket slump over and things were never the same for them.

Unconfirmed rumors persist in claiming that Mike's demise was not quite what the fine people in Fruita would have you believe. Unnamed sources have indicated that Mike got carried away with his new found fame and that he didn't have enough of a head on his shoulders to be able to handle it. Some say that Mike went way out of control, drinking tear-droppers full of booze and eating handfuls of "magic" corn. More than one hen has publicly admitted to a sordid affair and literally hundreds of chickens all over the country have claimed to be illegitimate descendants. The "official" cause of death may have been to choking, but few "in-the-know" believe it.

The spirit of Mike lives on in the third weekend of May in Fruita, Colorado during the Mike The Headless Chicken Festival. Events include chicken dancing and a pet parade in which people dress their pets to look like chickens. That one is a big favorite amongst the pets. There is of course, the "Run like a chicken with its head cut off 5k and 10k races"

People visit Fruita from all over the world for the festival. Maybe I'll get to go next year. And maybe I'll grow mutton chops just for the occasion.

Steve will be performing at the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks on South Street in Tewksbury on Saturday night to benefit Tewksbury Scouting. Tickets are still available and can be purchased at the door on the night of the show.

Everything's A Story

by Andrea MacMullin

With all of the advertisements on television for prescription medication, it's tempting to bring up the prospect of trying one with a physician. But, it seems that some of the side effects are actually worse than the affliction you would be taking medication for.

One particular advertisement had me thinking. As I heard the symptoms of this disorder, I recognized each one, thinking, "I have this!" I never really thought about it before, but until it was brought to my attention, I thought I was perfectly normal.

I actually took an online questionnaire for "adult attention deficit disorder," or as I'll refer to as AADD. Symptoms associated with this disorder may include, disorganization, losing things, lack of focus, difficulty finishing projects, or restlessness. Since I have all of these symptoms at some point every day, I assumed I was a candidate.

My answers indicated that "my symptoms may be consistent with AADD."

Now, I'm a pretty rational person. If I have AADD, then so does every other person I know. I have perfectly good explanations for all of these, so-called "symptoms."

Disorganization? Well, I've talked about that before, and my clutter on the kitchen counter has been reduced to one neat pile.

Losing things? I may misplace my keys now and then, but hey, I have never lost my children.

Lack of focus- well, I'm focusing on this now, right?

Difficulty finishing projects? Well, if I had more than twenty-five minutes at any one given time, I just might be able to finish something.

Restlessness - who has time to rest with all these projects to finish?

If I were actually going to seek treatment for this "affliction," or as I would like to call it, "a normal adult life," I would have to weigh the consequences of the side effects. One medication indicated that possible side effects may include: constipation, dry mouth, nausea, decreased appetite, dizziness, problems sleeping, problems urinating, cramps, and a side effect related to particular "relations."

Maybe these side effects occur just so you forget about having Adult Attention Deficit Disorder. I know if I had been dizzy and nauseous, I wouldn't be able to concentrate on making sure I didn't lose my keys. By the sounds of it, I might be in the bathroom a lot, or wait, no; I actually wouldn't - there was "problems" in that department.

I understand that people legitimately need this medication, but I think the drug company should make it a little more appealing to the consumer. If possible side effects included, "luxurious hair and flawless skin," I could guarantee a prescription, or even, "unexplained energy" might peek my interest.

As it stands, the side effects are much worse than my symptoms.

I'll just keep on with my "attention deficits," and hope for the magic pill that makes housecleaning, errands, meals, scheduling, and overall "mom and wife duties" a little easier.

Where's the logic?

Dear Editor,
I saw Ann Yurek's advertisement last week. I look forward to voting for an intelligent accomplished candidate. If she wins, I'll even start watching the meetings again. At least I'll be able to figure out whether I agree or disagree with her on the issues. Watching the "logic" at those meetings the last three years has been like watching a squirrel try to cross Route 93 during rush hour.

Letters to the editor

Ruth Reed candidate for Wilmington Housing Authority

I'd like to take this opportunity to share why I am interested in the Housing Authority. I have lived in Wilmington with my husband for 27 years. We have raised four children. Now that they are grown, I have more time to share my interests in town activities.

Having a father and in-laws living at Deming Way has made me aware of the need for positive changes. This position on the Housing Authority would give me the opportunity to work with other members on the board on behalf of all tenant needs and also learning what the State of Massachusetts guide lines are, with funding.

I have had experience on church committees and done fund raising for most of my years in Wilmington.

In raising my children I have always been an involved parent and have been to many sporting events and activities. One of my children has been severely handicapped for twenty years. Through this I can share my knowledge of working with the state on disability issues.

I enjoy having a rapport with people and I welcome the challenge of helping seniors and the disabled.

In closing, please remember Ruth Reed for Wilmington Housing Authority. It's time for change! Thank you for your vote on election Day.

Ruth Reed

Library is a Priority

Town elections are Saturday, April 16th and the Town Meeting is Saturday April 23rd. Both dates are critical to the success of the New Library Project and ultimately to the future of our community.

I respectfully urge all library supporters to attend Town Meeting on April 23rd to support the warrant article approving the design at the Swain School site. Approval of the preliminary design permits the Trustees to formally proceed with the application for Grant Funding. Let's be clear, if the Article does not pass at Town Meeting, all hopes of a new and much improved library facility are gone for the foreseeable future. There are some that would like to see this happen. Given that the need for a new library was identified over 10 years ago, let's not let that happen.

Wilmington residents deserve to live in a thriving, viable, and forward looking town, one that values its future as much as its past. We want to live in a town that places a high value on the well being of all citizens; one that strives to provide an excellent quality of life for all residents through educational opportunities, public safety, recreation, and life long learning opportunities. We want our library to be a source of civic pride, one that reflects well on all that we value.

For opponents to say the library is just not a priority at this time, I disagree, it is, in fact, one of the highest priorities facing our town. A library is a reflection of how a community views itself. Low expectations, complacency, and mediocrity are simply not in Wilmington's best interest. Let's make sure that our elected officials have the political will and the vision necessary to move our town forward. By electing them, we are charging them with managing the multiple and often competing priorities necessary to create a better quality of life for all residents. That is their job and we should expect no less.

Sincerely,
Kathleen McFadden

So many advantages

Dear Editor;

What an advantage we have living in Wilmington! Wonderful events are made available to us through the initiatives of quality people who we have working for the town in concert with multiple volunteers.

As many people are aware, the month of March celebrated Wilmington Reads Snow in August. What may be less known is the delightful collaboration between the public library and the school department. Through the initiatives of Tina Stewart, Library Director, and Young Adult Librarian Nathalie Demers, students and adults alike experienced two outstanding events.

On March 15, the regular library morning book club Page Turners engaged in a discussion at the Buzzell Senior Center with a group of junior/senior students from WHS. Eric Tracy, high school principal, lead the discussion. You would have thought that he was a first-class teacher of English, he was that good. His questions were directed, thought-provoking and designed to bring about a melding of experiences of the young and the less young present at the event. They worked beautifully and an engaging hour was spent by all.

On Thursday, March 24, the library conference room full of people were mesmerized by Ward Dilmore and his Strings Attached musical ensemble as they performed Classical Music in Snow in August. Mr. Dilmore tied in the experiences of Michael (Pete Hamill) as he faces the challenges of his growing up to a series of pieces which filled the listeners with joy and helped us all to experience the role of imagination in our lives.

Finally, teacher of English Claire Welch-Hitschler is to be congratulated for her wisdom in realizing that authentic learning does extend beyond the classroom. Students also have the opportunity to build memories through experiential learning. She has enabled her students to do just that.

No one can measure the depth of these experiences that were offered to young and old alike through a marvelous collaboration. Suffice it to say they were rich. Personally, I want to publicly thank those involved with these undertakings.

Finally, I strongly support the idea that the best gift Wilmington can give to itself for its 275th Anniversary is a New Library. I urge those of you who feel the same way to attend Town Meeting on April 23, and vote to continue the process toward that goal. I'll see you there!

Peggy Kane

Need for a new Library

My husband and I moved to Wilmington almost two years ago after living in North Reading for a number of years. I have always liked the small town charm of the community. One of my first experiences as a new resident was the "Wilmington Reads" project. As an adult, finding ways to meet and connect with others in a new town is not easy, especially without young children in the school system. I listened to Wilmington Reads selection on tape during my commute to and from work in Boston. I was able to attend a couple of the programs and really enjoyed the lively discussions that took place around the book. I have thoroughly enjoyed this year's selection, Snow in August as well.

I am writing in support of the proposed New Library Project. I have seen the plans on display at the library and am in agreement that Wilmington is in need of a New Library. Compared to other surrounding towns, Wilmington's library facilities are outdated. As a town, Wilmington has so much to offer, but its public library simply does not reflect that. I often use libraries in other towns because Wilmington's Library is just not on par with what other towns have to offer in terms of space, layout, collections, and overall ambiance. A recent letter suggests that Wilmington get its priorities straight. Since when is a Public Library not a priority? When I read the letter last week providing the analysis of surrounding towns I was shocked at how far behind Wilmington is. This does not reflect well on Wilmington. I urge all residents, young and old, old and new, to attend Town Meeting on April 23rd to support the New Library project. Wilmington residents deserve it.

Sincerely,
Janef Stankiewicz

Town has other priorities first

Dear Editor,

I have been reading these articles on the "New and Needed" Library. First of all, let's get one thing straight; according to Jeffrey Nussbaum and Kimberly Rose, the town is coming together. Well, I for one did NOT vote last time for a new Library and I will NOT vote for one again. The town is NOT coming together on this, only the select people, library committee and a select few others are pushing this onto every single person in Wilmington.

These people want to RAISE your taxes AGAIN for this library. So No, Jeffrey and Kimberly, we are NOT coming together. We are still paying for a middle school that is becoming over crowded already, a public safety building (police and fire) combined into one location. This location can no longer cover Wilmington correctly, hence the call for a new sub station. So why raise our taxes again, and again. Is it because you make a lot more money than others in town and can afford your taxes raised beyond the limits of the average person? Now as for as leaving a "Beautiful Legacy" (Patricia Kasparian), yes, lets leave one for our children, mine included.

Let's start with DRINKING WATER!!!! How about, oh, PUBLIC SAFETY in the form of a new sub station. How about making the town affordable so our children can actually afford to live here. How about leaving some of the old and historic buildings in place, renovating them, and use them for other things instead of just tearing them down. Want to compare to something, look at Woburn, their library is a beautiful building, and well over 100 yrs old. Ever been to Quincy MA? Their library is also well over 100 yrs old and fully functional. The present library is fine, if you must, add on a third floor to it as it was constructed to hold a 3rd floor for future expansion. Hello people, future expansion! I have gone into the library, and never once, could I not take out a book because it was already checked out. But, I have been denied certain things there because there is such a LACK of use for that reading material. Never have I NOT had a parking spot, never a chair not to sit in. Heck, I have had my pick of many chairs to sit in, why??? Because the library is NOT used as much as you people try to make it out to be. People that want this new library should start a FUND RAISER for it. Earn the money, as this will keep the library in monetary perspective. Don't rob from the poor to give to the rich, or as you claim, to the people. How many millions have we sent over seas to countries that either hate us or don't want our help? This money has mostly been raised by little dollar fundraisers here and there. You want a new library? Go earn it. It will NOT be on my tax dollar though. You want to raise my taxes for a sub station? Where do I sign up? And I am NOT in that section of town. I am a stones throw from town hall. Want to spend money cleaning up our water for our children, great lets do it, fire department needs a new ambulance, ok, go for it. Here is a short list of things to spend money on OTHER than a new library, 1) Drinking water, 2) Fire sub station, 3) new fire apparatus 4) school books for our children 5) school programs for learning disabled children (more teachers for these programs) 6) renovation of the swain school for a new town hall. 7) Conversion of old town hall back into a school 8) Mosquito control 9) preservation of open spaces and number 10) historic preservation of existing buildings in Wilmington. All in the name of leaving a "beautiful legacy" for our children, Patricia. With the exception of the drinking water, 11 million should just about cover it. Oh that's right, you want it for ONE building. Greedy aren't we? Or financially incompetent.

Lets take our town back to a financially sensible state people.

GETTING PERSONAL

As part of a homeowners policy, personal liability coverage is designed to protect the homeowner against a claim or lawsuit that could devastate the homeowner financially. For instance, if a visitor were to slip and fall on the front porch, the insurance company would pay the damages assessed against the homeowner up to the limits of the policy. If the visitor requires medical attention, a homeowners policy would pay for the visitor's medical expenses, regardless of who is at fault. It is standard for insurance policies to provide supplementary coverage that pays for minor damage to another person's property caused unintentionally by the homeowner or another member of the family. To extend their liability coverage, many homeowners purchase "umbrella" policies.

Make sure that your coverage is adequate for your family's needs. We will make sure that your insurance will take care of you in the future. Crossing the Border

by Yoni Freeman

"Don't take the straight path or the winding path.

Take the path your ancestors have taken." - Cambodian proverb

Part of our trip to Ho Chi Minh City was spent out of the country - in Cambodia. After a short flight to Siem Reap, we took a short bus ride to the hotel where we would spend the next two days going on guided trips to the temples of Angkor. The airport of Siem Reap is very small, and it is obvious that its main users are tourists. Siem Reap is the major town near Angkor's temples and pagodas, the former ancient capital of the Khmer Civilization. The town itself has been experiencing heavy construction, as it increasingly is serving a crucial point for their tourist industry (reportedly, there are over seventy hotels already standing). It has therefore become a tourist city, with few native Cambodians living there, aside from those providing services to foreigners. As a result, the currency has become unofficially the dollar and not the riel, causing prices much higher than I was used to in Vietnam, although still cheap compared to the US.

The atmosphere in that town is both one of destitution and of hope. Beggars are everywhere, together with cripples and victims of the countless wars and carnage Cambodia had continually faced, including the butchering of a quarter of its citizens (one to two million people) by the Khmer Rouge communist movement in the 1970's. However, people there are hopeful and are looking forward to the future - especially a future that increased tourism will bring. At every turn you meet them, especially kids, who speak to you in English. Even kids trying to sell things would talk to you, particularly those roaming around the temples.

As in Hanoi, there were many motorbikes awaiting customers at every street corner, including ones hauling small carriages. Small stall-lined streets, and an indoor market place were also found. The streets were less congested than Hanoi, with the presence of much fewer motorbikes. There appears to be less government control and rigid enforcement of regulations here. For example, many cars had no license plates. Nevertheless, there were more armed police, probably because of fears any show of crime might drive away the valued asset of future tourism.

The excursion to the temples began early in the morning. These temples, constructed between the 9th and 14th centuries by the Khmer civilization, all have distinct characteristics easy to spot. For example, these are not just structures, but also timelines. Images are found on walls telling a story or describing a battle. Additionally, you will find a tower you can climb up to, on very steep steps, at each temple. These towers had places to explore once you reached them. Climbing up became a mixture of not only strength, but also of keeping your head up, and making sure your feet were at the right place, because only one foot would fit on the step - and only after it was turned sideways. At times, it was like wall climbing - without the harness.

The temples came in different sizes. The largest of the temples named Angkor Wat, was surrounded by a moat 190 meters wide, which back in the old days had crocodiles swimming in it. It took 37 years to build. Its central tower for Hindus and Buddhists is considered to be the center of the universe. Many Buddhists, wearing their distinct orange colored robes, travel here to pray in front of religious images. At one point, during our tour, there were five languages being spoken at the same time all around us, underlining the fact this wonder of the world is being rediscovered.

The poverty of the people there was noticeably seen as well, when a policeman (yes a policeman) tried to sell his badge to us for fifteen dollars. I thought he was joking when he said, "Do you want to buy this?" so I asked "how much?" and he gave the price.

The temperature outside was much higher than Ho Chi Minh

City, and it was then that our group was thankful for the air conditioners in the hotel.

Because of this weather there were more bugs flying around. The town, however, had all the services one could ask for - internet, supermarket, restaurants and souvenir shops.

Our guide, Sam, had two tidbits of interest for us. During the Khmer Rouge occupation he was a little kid, and at one point hid in a small hole for a whole month, successfully avoiding capture. On the final day of our stay in Cambodia we did visit a killing field of the Khmer Rouge, where a pagoda stands today. At the center of the field there is a small box where one can see a pile of skulls and bones ... a reminder of the genocide.

Another story: According to a myth floating around, Saigon (now Ho Chi Minh City) and most of southern Vietnam are really part of Cambodia.

According to what he was taught, former President Ho Chi Minh promised Cambodia that when the south was conquered by the north, ending the war, he would return Saigon and the surrounding area back to Cambodia. I asked then why it never happened, and he replied that Ho Chi Minh died before the south was reunified with the north. He moreover said that Ho Chi Minh had been poisoned and really did not die of old age.

The two days at Siem Reap went by quickly. On the way back to the airport we were asked by the guide to return to Cambodia in the near future.

Indeed, I agreed. There was much to be seen here as time goes by because after all, it won't be only foreigners who will be making their mark in Cambodia - but future progress, free of tyranny, as well.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library who will also provide the peanuts and popcorn at the refreshment stand.

Seventh grader, Thomas Dinh and Guard Up! instructor, David Martelli pose together after the Historical Arms & Armor event held recently at the Wilmington Memorial Library. Nineteen middle and high school students showed up to learn about historical weapons, to help the instructors put on their armor, and to practice weapons handling methods with foams swords! Thomas was the lucky winner of the evening's door prize: a copy of The Lord of the Rings: Weapons and Warfare. (Door prize provided by the Friends of the Library).

Book Discussions

The Legend of Spud Murphy by Eoin Colfer was chosen by kids ages seven and older to be their book of discussion for Friday, April 8th at 3:30 p.m.

Eoin Colfe, the best-selling author of the internationally acclaimed Artemis Fowl books, brings us this brilliant new series for a younger audience. This is the story of Will and Marty Woodman, two brothers who have been ordered to spend their summer at the library, under the supervision of the terrifying librarian, Spud Murphy. How will they survive a summer surrounded by row after row of books they're sure will bore them silly? What will happen if they make a sound in the library?

Dragons in the Library?

The high number of dragon titles selected that children select for their book discussions attests to the fact that dragons are "in" at the Library—and dragons will hold a prominent place in this summer's reading program, "Simmer with Summer Reading". The sign-up mural being designed by local artist Rita Strow features a dragon reading and cooking chili with dragon fire.

The book Jeremy Thatcher, Dragon Hatcher by Bruce Coville will be discussed on Friday, April 15th at 3:30 p.m. Jeremy unknowingly buys a dragon's egg and his adventure changes his life forever. It is recommended for ages nine and older. A copy of the book may be reserved by calling the Children's Room at (978) 694-2098. Drop-in for discussion, light refreshment and door prizes (provided by the Friends of the Library).

Thanks to Ward Dillmore and Strings Attached

Ward Dillmore and the beautiful music of Strings Attached expressed the themes of imagination and power in the novel Snow in August with a performance at the library on Thursday, March 24th. Mr. Dillmore gave a profound testimony to the importance of books and libraries for the development of the imagination that generates problem solving power.

"Wondering what to do with your leftover ham?"

Recipe of the Month Submitted by: Lynn Graham - Billerica

Creamy Pea Soup

2 1/2 cups dried split peas
8 cups water
1 ham bone
1/2 cup chopped carrots
Fresh celery leaves
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon granulated garlic
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

Place peas, water, ham bone, shallots, celery leaves, bay leaf, garlic and pepper into a large pot. Heat to almost boiling, reduce heat, cover and simmer for about 1 1/2 hours or until the peas are tender. Remove the ham bone and bay leaf. Dice the meat from the ham bone and add diced ham to soup. Taste, and adjust seasoning as necessary.

A physical education and health teacher at Concord-Carlisle, Gillis has received great support and donations from family, friends and faculty at the school. The donations she receives will go the Brigham and Women's Hospital charity, which benefit community based projects including: violence prevention and pre and post-natal care for women without health insurance. The organization even supplies car seats for families who can't afford them.

Gillis has stepped up her training each week since December. She started out running four to five days a week for a total of 20 miles. Now she has reached 35 to 40 miles a week over seven days. In addition to her weekly total running mileage she does a distance run on Sundays.

She has gone from a 10 mile distance run to her peak this past Sunday at 21 miles. She will now start to scale down her mileage and her distance run. She will run three days for 15-18 miles. Her distance run will go down each week to be fresh for the marathon.

Gillis runs through Wilmington, Woburn and Burlington. She has added hills to her run to practice for the marathon.

"I've tried to add more hills toward the end of runs to get ready for heartbreak hill," Gillis said.

During the week leading up to the marathon she will eat more and try to stay hydrated and will run no more than five miles a day. She will not do any running after Friday.

Amazingly enough, Gillis will be running the race without an ACL in one of her knees. She suffered a knee injury 20 years ago and finally had to have her ACL removed about seven years ago. To prevent this from becoming an insurmountable obstacle, she lifts weights at RMA Fitness Center in Wilmington to keep the knee strong and does a lot of icing to keep the swelling down. She said that RMA has been great to her and has allowed her to leave a sponsor sheet there.

Gillis will be going into the marathon with some anxiety.

"I've never done this type of race before. I've run 21 miles but it's not the same as 26 miles," Gillis said.

Gillis has been to about a dozen Boston Marathon's and always thought about how great it would be to run in a marathon.

"I never thought that I really could run it, especially since my knee injury, until that Sunday in December when I had that great run," Gillis said.

She hopes that her three kids and a couple of her sisters will be there to cheer her on. "I hope my kids can get to a place where they can see me when I'm still running strong," Gillis said.

Her first goal is to finish the race.

"I'll be happy if I finish the race but then I would like to come in under four-and-a-half hours," Gillis said.

She finished her 21-mile run this past Sunday in three hours while 600 Marines were watching the Patriots-Rams Superbowl game in 2002, an officer singled Matt out early in the game when the Patriots were losing and said, "Corporal Meuse, what happened to your Patriots?"

Without missing a beat, Meuse replied, "Sir, it's early yet, sir." And sure enough, Matt was right.

Wilmington Veteran Agent Lou Cimaglia and Wilmington Selectman Michael Newhouse were on hand for Meuse's homecoming to present him with a citation from the grateful Town of Wilmington in recognition of his stellar leadership and outstanding performance.

thousand people came out twenty-five years ago for the 250th Anniversary Ball.

The Shriners is the only venue in town capable of accommodating a mob of 1,000 people, but a crowd of 300 just didn't make sense.

"The Shriners were great, they did everything possible to make it work for us," Cushing said. "It is big enough to give the entire town the opportunity to join the celebration, but it's too big for 300."

Cushing is confident that everyone who does attend will enjoy themselves.

Following the dinner, which will be served at 7:00 p.m., the evening will shift into high gear with music provided by "Classic Trax" covering your favorite songs from the 50's all the way to the 80's. Classic Trax has won Boston's Best Cover Band and has been nominated for the honor for eight years running.

A very limited number of tickets are still available at Town Hall for $45 per person.

A limited number of tickets remain also for the April 1 "Night of Music" to be held at Wilmington Middle School Auditorium. The audience will be treated to performances by the Wilmington High School Strings and Soundscape, WHS's a cappella singing group. The evening will also mark the very first public appearance of L'Archet, the Wilmington Middle School's strings group.

work toward gaining the trust of those families and how they would support those families.

"I understand the pain and grief they must feel," said Lepore, who is a cancer survivor. "Wilmington has twice the cancer rate of the state. There is a problem and we must support them."

Both McCoy and Yurek echoed the sentiment.

The development proposed by Mills Corporation in North Wilmington, which would potentially include a hotel and a restaurant to go along with the shopping Mall slated to be built on adjacent land in Tewksbury, was met with varying degrees of support.

McCoy believes that the development will generate much needed tax revenue for Wilmington. Since all access to the development will be limited to Interstate 93 through a new access ramp being proposed and paid for by the Federal government, McCoy believes that the development will not adversely effect public safety.

Although Lepore believes that generating revenue for Wilmington is important, he was hesitant to give an opinion on a proposal he has not yet seen.

"We need to think about fire and police protection, wetlands, conservation," Lepore stated.

According to Yurek, the development would generate $1 million in revenue for Wilmington and she was open to the idea.

The candidates were given the opportunity to ask questions of each other, though Lepore opted not to pose any to his opponents.

Yurek asked both of her opponents for examples of how they had proven to be independent and decisive over the past three years. McCoy stated that his reputation of being an independent thinker was backed by the number of 4 to 1 votes that he has stood in the minority position on over the course of more than a decade. Lepore described himself as a "political cowboy" who speaks his mind.

"When I see an issue come, eventually I will say exactly what I think," Lepore said.

McCoy wanted to know how Yurek could rationalize the costs of a new library to those residents currently struggling to make ends meet. Yurek broke the costs associated with a new library down to what the additional burden per month would likely amount to for each taxpayer.

"The cost will be approximately $7 a month," Yurek said. "If you look at our debt structure, it decreases with each and every year, so it is not a permanent cost. Those who cannot afford a library will be able to go to the ballot and vote as they feel is correct."

McCoy accused Lepore of "flip-flopping" on the library issue just weeks before the election. He asked Lepore why he changed his position and what reassurance he could provide against another reversal.

"First of all I didn't flip-flop," Lepore said. According to Lepore, his decision to oppose a new library was reached only after listening to all of the information. "Mr. McCoy, at least I kept an open mind on this issue. I didn't see you at any of the library meetings," Lepore said.

The Annual Town Election will be held on April 16

Extreme makeover for the Bond Collection

been lost for a hundred years and now they're back."

One glass plate contained an image of Captain Joseph Bond, but had been broken into three separate pieces. Smith was able to restore the image to pristine condition with no sign of breakage showing.

One would reasonably assume that it would require state-of-the-art cutting edge technology to achieve such results, but that is not necessarily the case, according to Smith. While the technology just a few years ago was not capable of such feats, Smith used Adobe Photoshop, a relatively common software package, and a Microtech flatbed scanner to work her magic.

The Historic Commission has been looking for a place to get the glass negatives developed. Smith spends a great deal of time creating computerized visual presentations at work, which often require the touching up of photographs, so she volunteered to give it a shot.

"I was like a little kid in a candy shop when I went through them," Smith said.

The newly restored photographs detailing Wilmington's past will be featured during the April 3rd installment of Wilmington Historical Commission's Winter Lecture Series. The event begins at 2:00 p.m. at the Harnden Tavern. The topic of the afternoon centers around Wilmington authors their plans to commemorate the town's 275th Anniversary.

Paul Chalifour (author of Images of America: Wilmington), Gerry O'Reilly (author of Wilmington, A Retrospective, Silver Lake Revisited, and Collected Memories), and Adele Passmore (author of 250th Anniversary, Wilmington A Commemorative Book and contributor to Inventory of Historic Homes in Wilmington) will be on hand.

The Bond Collection had been missing for the better part of a hundred years before the Town finally became aware of its whereabouts. The collection was re-acquired in 1997.

Arthur Bond was born in Wilmington in 1852. His father, Captain Joseph Bond established the Bond Cracker Baking Factory on Middlesex Avenue close to the current spot of the Baptist Church and the Wilmington Memorial Library. The factory ran as a family business from 1802 until the majority of the structures were consumed by fire in 1864, twenty-four years after Joseph's demise.

Arthur spent a good portion of the end of the 1800's putting his historical collection together with the intention of selling a history of Wilmington to the Town. He appeared before Town Meeting on March 6, 1905 to pitch the concept.

According to the minutes of that meeting, "(Bond) exhibited to us memoranda of a large number of facts and records which he had collected, and stated that by the aid of such material, he could produce a volume of perhaps eight hundred pages, covering the periods from about 1685 to the present time, in great detail."

Bond set his price for such an endeavor at $900, bringing the total cost for producing 500 copies to approximately $2,700.

Town Meeting voted to study the proposal further.

Bond returned to Town Meeting one year later prepared to write a scaled down 300-page version of the Town history for a fee of $750. Bond's proposal received a simple majority vote, but failed to meet the required two-thirds. With a vote of 30 in favor and 24 against, Bond lost by a matter of 6 votes.

According to Paul Emmons in the September 24, 1952 Wilmington Crusader, Bond was embittered by the defeat and left Wilmington with a vow never to return. He failed to live up to that vow, returning several years later.

His infamous collection, however, did not return with him. For many years after his death in 1936, Wilmington historians had searched in vain for the collection. Emmons even went so far as to doubt whether it still existed.

"Just how 'vast' was the amount of data Bond had collected, and what became of it?" Emmons wrote in the September 24, 1952 edition of the Wilmington Crusader. "When I went through the papers in his office at the request of his executor I only found some scattered notes a few pictures of old buildings, including the Bond Cracker Factory, and a typewritten transcript of Volume 1 of the Town records."

Emmons goes on to speculate, without much optimism, that some additional papers may have existed at his Wellesley home, which was listed as Bond's legal residence at the time of his death.

The collection remained hidden until the late 1990's when a collector from Canton antique dealer stumbled across it. The dealer, Stuart Goldman, quickly realized that the documents themselves all but amounted to an entire history of Wilmington, so he contacted the Town.

Goldman had received reasonable offers for just Bond's Revolutionary War memorabilia, but he didn't want to break up the collection before giving Wilmington the opportunity to purchase the collection in its entirety.

In July of 1997, the collection, which includes such things as the original Town Seal, the first town map drawn by the surveyor who established the town lines, nearly a hundred photographs, and hundreds of documents, finally came home to Wilmington for a fee of $15,000.

Lori Trites and Lori (Ross) Kane got all the neighborhood kids together on Easter day for the 1st ever Woburn Street Easter Egg Hunt at 306 and 302 Woburn Street. Hundreds of eggs were scooped up in a matter of minutes, no one was hurt, all had fun. In case you didn't get enough chocolate the Wilmington Recreation Dept will have their Easter Egg Hunt on Saturday, April 2nd at 2 p.m. sharp, rain or shine on the Wilmington Town Common.

Football coach is next AD

A familiar face gets bumped up at Shawsheen Tech

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

When this school year comes to an end at Shawsheen Tech, it will mark the end of the career of Shawsheen athletic director Ron Nowakowski who will be stepping down after 26 years at the post. Stepping into Nowakowski's shoes will be Al Costabile, who has coached the Rams football team for the past seven years and has also headed the lacrosse team since its inception three years ago.

Before coming to the Tech in 1998, Costabile had spent the previous eight years coaching football at Bishop Fenwick High School, the last six of which he was the head coach. He had some remarkable success while at the helm of the Crusaders, leading the team to 21 straight regular season wins and two consecutive Super Bowl appearances during the 1995 and 1996 campaigns.

With all of his previous success, Costabile is looking forward to the next challenge of his career.

"I'm really excited about it and I am very honored to be given this opportunity," Costabile said. "It's something I had always thought of doing, and it is a position that I hold in very high esteem."

Despite his long time desire to hold an AD position, Costabile still had to give some thought before officially applying for the job when Nowakowski decided to step down.

"When Ron stepped down I thought about it, but to be in position as both athletic director and football coach is something I have tremendous respect for and I had to think about that," Costabile said. "It's a lot of responsibility."

A responsibility that Costabile decided he definitely wanted, making the administration at Shawsheen very happy.

"Al is an exemplary leader, both with young people and with those around him," said Shawsheen superintendent Charles Lyons. "He has a work ethic that is second to none, and he is the type of role model we are fortunate to have in high school today."

Costabile, who also coached spring track during his first four years at Shawsheen before leaving that position to head up the lacrosse team, began his coaching career as a softball coach Christopher Columbus High School in Boston in 1988. He will step down from his position as lacrosse coach after this season, but he will continue as coach of the football team.

"I would not want to give up my football job and this allows me to continue with that passion while I also get to have an opportunity to progress in a new field with a lot of new challenges," Costabile said.

One of those challenges for Costabile will be to continue the strong athletic tradition the Nowakowski has upheld at Shawsheen for over two decades. That tradition includes not only the winning tradition developed by many of the teams, but something much more important.

"Something I really want to have in everything I do and think in my job as AD is to ensure the sanctity of our athletic programs and the essence of fair play," Costabile said. "That has to be the common denominator in all that we do. If I do that, I will be well on my way to what I have to do as athletic director."

Costabile elaborated on what he means by the sanctity of the athletic program.

"As AD, it is my job to be sure that all of our teams play by the rules as set by the MIAA. It is important that we abide by MIAA rules and do things the right way," Costabile said. "Our reputation among other schools in the MIAA is that we play hard, but we play fair and I want to continue that."

Lyons feels that Costabile is the perfect man to continue Shawsheen's great reputation.

"At Shawsheen, we pride ourselves on winning with dignity and losing with grace. They are called games for a reason," Lyons said. "Sports at Shawsheen are all about learning life skills to make these kids better human beings and better parents someday. I think Al's whole attitude will be a great asset for the kids."

Costabile knows that while he has been given a great opportunity he also has some big shoes to fill. Nowakowski has developed a certain way of doing things over the years and regardless of how effective Costabile is, there will be a period of transition for both athletes and Costabile's fellow coaches.

"Without a doubt I have tremendous amount of respect for what Ron has done over the past 26 years. He has put in a lot of work," Costabile said. "He left an imprint. One thing that will be helpful is that I have a good relationship with Ron and we are very respectful of each other. That will be very helpful during our transition, and I look forward to Ron's input."

Ultimately however, Costabile's success will be due to his own efforts and he plans on being at Shawsheen for many years to come. The 50 year old may not put in 26 years as his predecessor did, but you also won't find Costabile checking the want ads any time soon.

"This could very well be where I end up retiring and I would be very happy if that were the case," Costabile said. "I am not looking to go anywhere. I am very happy to take over this position and I hope to have a very long tenure."

Starting in June, Al Costabile will be the Shawsheen Tech Athletic Director taking over for the retired Ron Nowakowski. (file photo)

A very easy choice for the Rams

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

With the retirement of long time Shawsheen Tech athletic director at the end of this school year there were of course many applicants to be his replacement. Ron Nowakowski will be a hard man to replace after his 26 years as AD, but the administration at Shawsheen could not have made a better choice in selecting their very own Al Costabile.

Costabile's work ethic, along with his ability to relate to and lead young athletes will be a welcome sight in the AD's office. While it is unknown just how many other exceptional candidates Costabile beat out for the position, it is unlikely that anybody brought the combination of the above mentioned attributes as well as the intense loyalty to the Shawsheen program that Costabile brings.

Costabile is very well known to fans of Shawsheen for his work with the Rams football team for the past seven years as well as with the lacrosse team which he has headed since its inception three years ago.

This past season, Costabile led the Rams football team to a 9-3 record and an appearance in the first ever State Vocational Bowl. He will continue as coach of the football team while taking on his new responsibilities, but he will step down as coach of the lacrosse team.

While the Ram football team will likely to continue to excel under Costabile's stellar leadership, it is something much more than wins and losses that makes Costabile the ideal choice for this position.

Anybody who has spent any amount of time watching Costabile deal with his players knows that this is a man of integrity and class that any school would be proud to have at the head of their athletic program. He has demonstrated on many occasions that despite his intense desire to win and push his players to their maximum ability, the most important thing he wants from his athletes is that they display the same class and integrity that he does on a daily basis. Wins and losses are nice, but it is how a Shawsheen player arrives at the win or loss that matters most to Costabile.

Football and lacrosse players over the years have discovered that team rules apply to everybody, from the all-state player to the last player on the bench. Break those rules and you do not play for a Costabile coached team. Give 100% effort and carry yourself with class and you earn the utmost respect of the coach. It is that spirit of fairness that Costabile will bring to his new position and his attitude will permeate throughout the program.

In Costabile the local media will also have an honest and accessible voice to help promote Shawsheen sports. During his time as coach of both football and lacrosse, he has always made himself available to the media for the purpose of promoting his teams or one of his players. He is the type of coach who goes out of his way to mention the contributions of as many players and assistant coaches as possible in the aftermath of a game, win or lose.

Parents of Shawsheen players have trusted in Costabile the coach for years, knowing their kids were always in good hands under Coach C. Now, parents of Shawsheen athletes regardless of the sport can have the same feeling with Costabile at the head of the entire program.

Put quite simply, it is a great time to be a fan of Shawsheen sports. One great ambassador for the program is stepping down and another is stepping in to continue the great tradition that has been built at the Tech.

Teacher/student hoop game a blast

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

The notebooks were filled for many Wilmington High seniors last week. It started with the ritual homework assignments: two worksheets in math, a science report due on Friday, geography terms for history class, and then one last major task: time had come to beat the teachers in a fun game.

On Wednesday afternoon, the third annual Seniors vs Faculty basketball game was held at Larry Cushing Gymnasium. This was the senior's chance to have that one lasting memory of the teachers that made their four years so great. Unfortunately, that memory of their teachers was in shorts and sweatbands.

The hype was mounted throughout the school week, as posters and announcements marked the approach of the big game. As the seconds were ticking down for tip-off, the tension was thicker than whatever was served for lunch that day.

When the game officially started, it was the real basketball players who took control. Senior Mark Giordano - who was the varsity point guard on this year's Cape Ann League championship team - hit two consecutive threes to start the game. And then the teachers clawed back. Mr. Carroll, a very popular computer technology teacher, confused the defense with his bobblehead-like head fakes and dropped in a flurry of lay-ups. Actually, he had five in the first half.

Class president Clayton Huynh - also a member of this past season's basketball team - had his share of playing time and played the press against the teachers. The pressure defense was too much for the teachers, who subsequently crumbled and it was pretty much over from there. Joe Mayo and Brian Little, two great athletes from other sports, had their first taste of the hardwood and Vic Dellisola also had his fun on the court, all key figures in helping the students' team.

Then after the first quarter, the female teachers and female students had their turn. Margie Taylor dominated the boards all game with no sign of slowing down. Lani Cabral-Pini - the captain and point guard from the girls varsity basketball team - stole the show. After playing four years against players much taller than she, Cabral-Pini finally was able to dribble the ball past several teachers who she was taller than.

At the half their was no deprivation of interesting fun. Their were two competitions in which random spectators were drawn from a hat and competed for fabulous prizes. In the 3-point competition, the first person to make a trey would get a gift certificate to the Burlington Mall. It's not as easy as it sounds.

After about 15 people all failed to hit a three, Krista Murphy, younger sister of WHS tri-sport athlete Sean Murphy and a two-sport athlete herself, was the first to hit a three.

The next competition was "Score on Ollila". A fan would have one shot to score on WHS basketball captain Eric Ollila. This was harder than the first competition. You had one chance to score a point against him. As soon as he touched the ball, it was over. It turns out that Ollila actually is pretty good at basketball. Ollila shut down kid after kid for about 15 minutes.

Among the crowd that was shut down by Ollila, an all-league basketball player from this past winter, was Brian Giamberardino, of the football and track teams, as well as Sean Murphy, the three-sport junior star, as mentioned beforehand. Both were stuffed and sent home.

Luckily Pat Taylor, a former standout basketball player at WHS, hit a lay-up without much effort, behind his 6-foot-6 inch frame compared the six feet stance of Ollila.

After the halftime fun and games ended, the basketball game resumed. Once again there was more of the same humor that characterized the first half. Officer Anthony Fiore put on a wig and played for the ladies. Principal Eric Tracy did his thing and basically became reminiscent of a young Shawn Bradley down low. Mrs. Nardo hit a miraculous three that lit the crowd on fire.

The game continued to be nothing short of a great time for all. Many laughs were shared between all of the senior players, and the faculty members. But unfortunately no one had fun the next day as half of the teachers stayed home nursing their injuries, as the high school's athletic trainer Billy Martin thought he was at a football game taking care of so many people's bumps and bruises.

For those seniors, this will be one of those nights they will remember for a long time after they graduate in June. The seniors will remember the good times they had with their teachers, and fellow classmates and friends. As for the teachers, they will spend the rest of the year recapping the game and coming up with a better strategy to hold down next year's class of seniors.

Until then, maybe the teachers will help the students score a few extra credit points for those kids who held up encouraging signs for their favorite instructors.

Extra Innings accepting registrations for clinics

Extra Innings of Tewksbury is now accepting registrations for its April Baseball Vclinics.

The April Baseball Hitting Clinic focuses on the mechanics of hitting. All levels of players are invited. Our instructors will individually evaluate and help correct potential flaws in the players swing during this four week period. Tunnels as well as the training room will be used.

Mondays April 4, 11, 18, 25
Ages 7-12 - 6:15 to 7:30 PM
Ages 13-17 - 7:45 to 9:00 PM

The April Vacation Baseball Clinic focuses on the skills of hitting, pitching, catching and fielding. Students are separated into age groups and rotated throughout the facility. The stations are each designed to teach a different skill. Each station is taught by our instructors in their area of expertise. The whole Extra Innings is used for this popular clinic. Students will also receive a free Extra Innings T-shirt.

Wilmington Youth Hockey highlights

The Wilmington Mite A's took on the Lynnfield Mite A's Saturday afternoon at the Ristuccia Rink here in Wilmington.

Their previous two meetings were very close so we knew we were in for an exciting game. Lynnfield struck first with 4 minutes left in the first period. Nick LoConte broke free and put one away in the top right corner. This seemed to motivate Wilmington. They came out the second period and really picked up the pace. Johnny Galasso, Richie Greenberg, and Cody McGowan turned on the jets and were beating Lynnfield to the puck and digging in the corners at every opportunity and it paid off.

With four minutes left in the second period Chris Sartori came flying off the bench, picked up the puck and fired it right over the right shoulder of the goalie. The boys wanted this win.

The tenacious defense of Chris Sartori, Shane Brennan, Zach Malatesta and Kevin Cummings kept Lynnfield in check. The boys kept at it the rest of the period. Tommy Thompson, Mark Albano and Jamie Hill, had some great shots on net to no avail.

The second period was winding down and just when you thought it was going to be over, Mark Albano hustled in the corner after a rebound and flipped the puck high into the air. The puck bounced off the goalie and into the net to put Wilmington ahead 2 to 1.

One period to go and the boys knew they had to come out skating hard to get the win. Justin Denorscia and Joseph Castellano did an awesome job keeping the puck in our zone throughout the period.

The boys were working hard looking for each other and working the puck into the zone. With 9 minutes left in the period Johnny Galasso came streaking down the left side of the ice looking up for his linemates. Richie Greenberg flies to the net and Johnny put the puck right on his stick and Richie fired it into the back of the net. Lynnfield was not giving up and Wilmington knew they had to keep skating hard.

The fabulous goaltending of Jimmy Davey kept us in the game. He was like a stone wall. Lynnfield had some good shots only to be denied. Wilmington pulled off a 3 to 1 win. It was a great team effort that gave them the win.

Wilm Mite B's

The Wilmington Mite B team shut out Stoneham in a 3-0 game on Saturday March 26th. The goalies on both teams saw plenty of action this game. Sam Dangelo was robbed on his break away shots. The Stoneham goalie also made great saves when Tommy Simmons, Brodie Curtis and Gerry O'Reilly aimed their shots.

It was Wilmington's Glenn Sullivan who earned the shut-out this game. He was superb in net. Making glove saves and several stops that changed the course of the game. When Stoneham took control in the first period he met the challenge, deflecting the puck to the boards and making way for some fancy footwork by Scott Newton who cleared the puck and fired it to winger Justin Collins who swooped in from the left and swiftly carried the puck down the ice and scored.

The offensive teaming of Robert Fullerton, Kyle Callahan, and Billy Falter were at work when Callahan scored the second goal for Wilmington. Defensively playing both ends of the ice were Joey Marino and Michael Marcinkowski. They did a great job keeping the puck in the zone and dumping it into the other end when it wasn't.

Nick Brown made a great chase when it looked like a Stoneham winger had the chance to score. He kept the player out of the crease and allowed Sullivan a birds-eye view of the shot which he successfully stopped without hesitation.

In the final minutes of the third period, Brandon Gentile scored with a top corner wrist shot. He was assisted by Joey Marino and Justin Collins. The team has been fortunate to play on home ice the past several games. They have figured out how the puck bounces in their rink and the applause and support from their fans have lifted their spirits and enabled them to play their best.

Wilm Pee Wee E's

team continued it's outstanding play by going 4-0-1 in 5 games this past week and a half. Because of make up games the team just went thru one of it's busiest stretches of the season and came out of it in flying colors.

In the Dual State League the team has come from the clouds to contend for 4th place, which is the last playoff spot. A few weeks ago they seemed helplessly out of it, but that's not the case now after their 3 straight big wins, two of which came against teams higher in the standings. First they knocked off a tough Masco C team up in Tyngsboro by a 3-2 score.

Next they traveled over to Lawrence Academy and took care of business with a 6-0 drubbing of the Gardner C team. Then came a huge 4-1 victory on Good Friday up in Tyngsboro again, this one against the 2nd place MYHRA-C team. So after this past stretch of D/S League games the team sits right there on the door step of the final playoff spot after being mired in last place just a few short weeks ago.

It's been a different story in the Valley League as the E's have pretty much gone wire to wire in 1st place. They solidified their standing in this league with a tie 2-2 tie against Beverly, then a 6-1 pounding over Woburn, which featured a 4 goal monster game from winger Joey Russell. Both games were played at Ristuccia. This win also unofficially clinched 1st place in the Valley for the squad.

Highlights and stats over this most recent stretch of 5 games would include the following:

Center Mark Contrado's 8 goals and 3 assists, including the big game winner in the 3-2 win over Masco. Winger Drew Cummings, 5 goals and 4 assists, including a hat trick against Gardner. Winger Joey Russell, 5 goals and 2 assists, including the above mentioned 4 goal outburst against Woburn. Winger Craig Benard, a goal and 5 assists, including setting Russell up for 3 straight in the Woburn game. Center Nick Pino 4 assists, as well as his all around 2 way hustle and outstanding faceoff ability. Defenseman Mike Ciampa a goal and 4 assists in addition to his steady defensive work. Jeff Goosens 1 goal and 2 assists but that's not the story with Jeff. He's been given the dual role of playing forward and also defense when the team is missing one of it's regular blue liners. It's not easy to bounce back and forth between the two, but Jeff's been more than up to that task. Also, hard trying winger Zak Gosselin chipped in with a goal and assist. He's another one who shows up with his game face on every night.

All the scoring stats aside, like the old baseball saying goes, "pitching and defense wins championships". Well it's no different in hockey except it states "great goaltending and defense" is the key. This team is no exception as everything starts with goalie Joey Walsh. He's been the key to this teams run to 1st place in Valley and also it's resurgence in the D/S.

The last 5 games are perfect evidence to support that statement as he's only gave up 6 goals in 5 games including the shutout against Gardner. Also, at least 3 of those 6 goals would be considered of the "flukey" variety. Joey's had a tremendous amount of help in front of him too as the 4 man defensive unit of Mike Ciampa, Steve Taylor, Steve McNamara and Bobby Carlin have been playing their best hockey of the season down the stretch. They've been playing great as a unit and provide different styles into the mix. The stay at home, hard hitting styles of Taylor and Carlin nicely compliment the rush the puck and savvy style of Ciampa, and the all around hustle overall improvement of Stephen McNamara. Steve would get this reporters vote as the most improved player from the beginning of the season.

The team also got some good news on the injury front as forward Jake Straccamoro provided some depth up front when he recently returned to limited action from some tough injuries and illness. His return was an inspiration to all. Hard working forward Cam Babine remains on the DL with a broken wrist however. Cam is right there on the bench with his game jersey and helmet on for much need support every game though.

Tewksbury Squirt III's fall to Wilmington

The Tewksbury Squirt 3 team, sponsored by All Star Fence Inc, earned a hard fought victory over Wilmington.

4-3. After trailing 1-0 late in the first period Alex Hamilton started the scoring for the Redmen with assists going to defensemen Kelly Peach and Marc Piracini. Both teams played hard and goals were hard to come by as the first period ended 1-1. Only 21 seconds into the 2nd period Dennis Peach gave the Redmen the lead on a nice pass from K.C. Coneeny and Jason Abele.

A few minutes later it was Ryan Finneral's goal as he was parked out front finishing some great forechecking by Nick Maglio and Alex Hamilton.

The line of Nick Cervizzi, C.J. Foti and Kevin Chiara put on some pressure and forced the Wilmington goalie to come up big. Goalie Ryan Muise had another solid game in net with some big saves and gave way to Joseph Boerman halfway through the game as Tewksbury led 3-1. Great defense was played by both teams and Wilmington fought back to score a late 2nd period goal as the period ended 3-2. Team defense was a big part at keeping the lead with the line of Madison Harris, Dennis Peach and K.C. Coneeny setting the tone.

Halfway through the 3rd period it was a Nick Maglio break-away goal set up by some great defensive work from Dan Ladderbush and Paul Rice giving the Redmen a 2 goal lead. Solid goaltending from Joseph Boerman kept the lead for Tewksbury as Wilmington would not give up and had some quality chances. With 5 minutes left in the game Wilmington cut the lead to one as they scored on a goal mouth scramble. The final score was Tewksbury 4 Wilmington 3, a great effort by both teams.

Wilmington Pee Wee D's putting forth best effort

The Pee Wee D Wildcats are coming down their home stretch with everyone putting up their best against them. They started off with a frustrating game against Salem, New Hampshire in a scoreless tie on March 16th.

Both teams started a bit slow, but built momentum over the 1st period. The defensive walls were stopping Salem cold and making them cough the puck up repeatedly. Yet Wilmington couldn't capitalize despite many great attempts. The score showed how hard the goalies worked! The Wildcats' Nick Luise was like an octopus, with great saves in all directions.

A few days later, Wilmington came back and showed they could put up a few, taking a win over Burlington. The Wildcats played hard but Burlington was a tough match, with their defense all over the ice. With 32 seconds left in the 1st, Sara Alonardo finally put Wilmington on the board, assisted by Adam Siegel. Matt Toto came back in the 2nd and snuck one through the Burlington pads off a great pass from Tyler MacInnis. Burlington wasn't going to let that go unanswered, and fired one in halfway through the 2nd. Both teams skated hard, with the defense keeping everyone alive.

The Wildcats finally nailed it in the 3rd, first with Dom DiRupo blasting in an unassisted goal. Gordie Fitch topped it off a minute later from the point, set up by MacInnis and Toto, to give Wilmington a solid 4-1 win.

Later that day, the PeeWee D's met their match in Methuen, who didn't let Wilmington get ahead this time. Methuen came out quick and got on the board, leaving Wilmington speechless. The Wildcats pulled it together and got back in the game. First Trevor Foley took aim and fired one in off a beautiful pass from Siegel. Seconds later, BC Layton caught Toto's rebound and blasted it between the Methuen pipes.

The Wildcats couldn't hold Methuen down - 2 more unassisted Methuen goals put them up 3-2 by the end of the 1st. The 2nd period saw both teams try fighting repeatedly for the puck. Layton and Cerbone showed great defensive work off the face-offs, clearing the puck out of the zone. Favuzza, Blinn and Shafer kept the pressure strong. Shafer first got a strong shot off the face-off, blocked by Methuen, but Favuzza picked up the rebound and in to tie it up. Foley, Alonardo and Siegel were skating hard and looked like they had #4, only to be muscled out by Methuen.

With 30 seconds left, Fitch took it down like the "Wilmington Express", but was unable to make it happen, ending a great game 3-3.

The PeeWee D's came back the next day, this time with Lynn coming on strong! Wilmington got on the board first with Fitch shooting from the point, assisted by DiRupo. Lynn wasn't going down on this one. Layton and Cerbone held them off repeatedly. Luise looked like he had a breakaway stopped until Lynn snuck in a quick rebound to even up the score.

The goalies worked hard and held the game scoreless in the 2nd, despite a lot of up and down scoring attempts. Early in the 3rd, Wilmington broke through the logjam with Toto taking the puck down the right side, with shot blocked by Lynn. Blinn, with help from Toto and DiRupo, fired in the rebound. Despite Luise's hot golden glove, he couldn't catch Lynn's blast with 4 minutes left that tied up the game 2-2.

Wilmington came away with 1-0-2 for the stretch! Special thanks to the coaches and the PeeWee D sponsor, Wilmington Arena Authority.

CHAMPION SNOWMAN: Lauren Field hugs her favorite Patriot. He took first place in Wilmington's Snow Sculpture Contest. With the help of her brother, Devin, their entry even beat out a Red Sox snowman!

Finally - A good use for all this snow!

WILMINGTON - The Recreation Department picked a great year for its First Snow Sculpture Contest. The entries were great and each had a unique approach to the contest and the snow.

It was no surprise that First Place was awarded to Lauren and Devin Field for their "Go Pats" snowman after all, The Pat's just took their own "first place" in the Superbowl. Second place was awarded to Jason and Kyle Vallee for their Breast Cancer Survivor snowman who was carrying a pocketbook and wearing a breast cancer awareness pin. And finally, what would a contest be this year without a snowman warming up this long cold winter with glorious memories of our World Champion Boston Red Sox. Cory Gendreau was the first to enter this contest and took home Third Place honors for his snowman sporting a Sox cap.

Watch for news of the next snow sculpture contest in the Winter Flyer due out in December.

The Sheriff's Community Command Center brings many emergency agencies together

Rolling together under one roof

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

As a former Malden Police officer Middlesex Sheriff James V. DiPaola knew the weakest link in providing coordinated emergency services was the communication between many disparate agencies. As a former state representative, the sheriff knew how to go about finding a solution to the problem, and, with a federal grant, from the Department of Justice is now providing communities throughout Middlesex County, the state of Massachusetts and New England, with a mobile Community Command Center.

In a prepared statement, Sheriff DiPaola said, "The Purpose of the Middlesex Sheriff's Office providing a resource such as the Community Command Center, is to help support public safety. Our partners in Law Enforcement and public safety work together in strong mutual relationships of support, trust and cooperation."

"If we have learned one lesson in the past few years it is that we must all work together to provide safe streets, secure homes and bright futures."

Thus, even before the events of 9/11, DiPaola was working to receive the $850,000 grant from the Department of Justice, which allowed his department to design and purchase the 40 foot long, 13 foot 2 inch high Prevost Diesel powered bus that acts as the mobile command center. Because it was purchased with a federal grant, the center is available for use by municipal, state and federal agencies, as well as some civilian agencies that have a need of it.

Assistant Deputy Superintendent Kenneth Leva said, "The federal grant allows us to go anywhere in the state or leave the state, which we do when we help in New Hampshire or Rhode Island or other bordering states."

Public Information Officer

Mark Lawhorne said, "It doesn't just support the Middlesex Sheriff's Office. It will support any federal or state agency that requests it."

Recently the Command Center has been in New Hampshire for a training session with 30 different law enforcement agencies, including the Los Angeles, California Police SWAT team and the Northeast Massachusetts Law Enforcement Council Tactical Force. Later this month, it will be going to Hopkinton for the third year to act as the base of operations for the Boston Marathon.

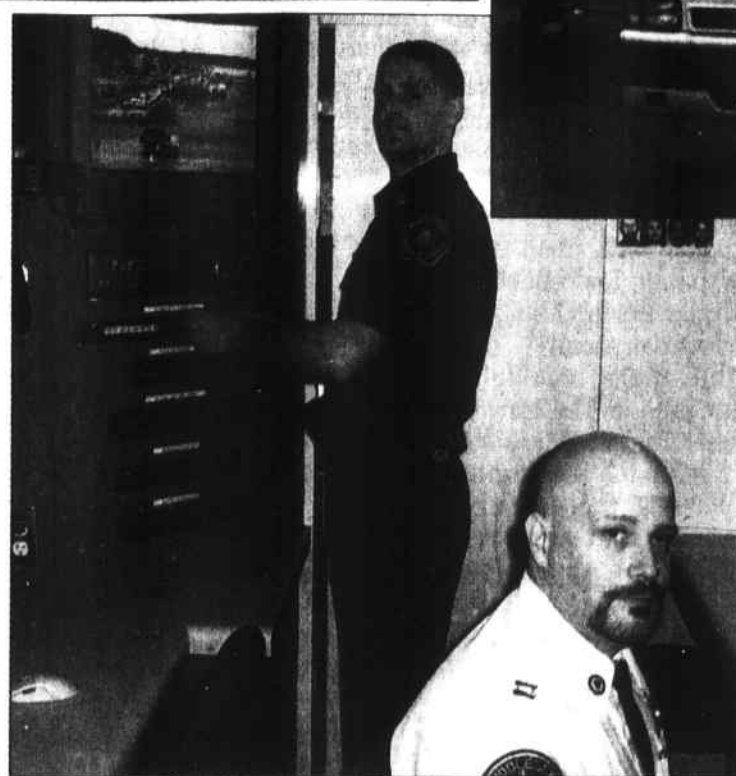

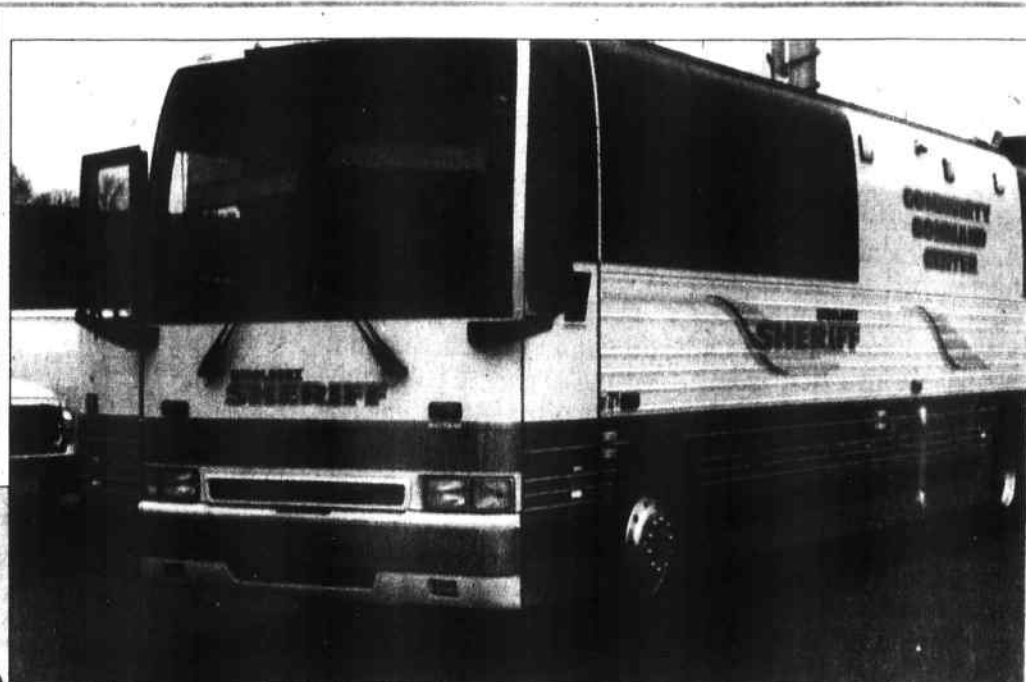

Leva said, "We provide communications to any agency. We do not take command and control."

The actual command is left up to the person in charge of the situation, such as a local police or fire chief, who normally acts as an emergency management team leader.

"We do a lot of training on it with different agencies (so they will be familiar with it in an emergency)," Leva said.

The Communications Center can provide complete communications from two-way radio, to land-line or cell telephone, to internet access and facsimile transmissions. The radio system is completely digitized and can be immediately tuned to whatever frequency is being used by any emergency agency. Leva said, "Redundancy is really a big part of the command center. The telephones and fax machines work as land-lines or cell phones."

The 40 foot bus is divided into three compartments, the operations center (in the front of the bus), a galley kitchen (in the center), and a command suite (at the rear of the bus). A passageway connects the three areas, but the galley can be closed off from the other two and has its own exterior entrance to cut down on extraneous activity distracting the work in the other two areas.

command suite is a large screen plasma television. However, it is very functional as it also acts as an interactive computer.

The screen can show complete maps of the eastern United States and can be zoomed in to show a virtual picture of any given area. In one example, the maps can show the areas between the Middlesex Courthouse and jail in Cambridge and the Suffolk County Jail across the Charles River in Boston.

If a problem is occurring at the Boston facility, the Sheriff's deputies in Cambridge can prepare to deal with the situation if it spills over to their side of the river.

In another scenario, the maps can be used by law enforcement personnel, or other emergency workers, to map out evacuation or approach routes for any given situation. This can also be used in conjunction with weather communications in the operations center, during hazardous material situations where alternate evacuation routes might have to be established because of shifting weather conditions.

A lot of thought was put into the design and planning of the Center, and Leva, who was a part of that team, notes that DiPaola was in on every phase. Even the actual height of the van was considered in the planning stages.

Leva said, "Bridge heights were an issue. We needed to be able to get anywhere."

He noted that the design team looked at all types of vehicles, from the Blue Bird Bus shells used on school buses to camper bodies before decid-

"HOSTAGE"

MOVIE:
"HOSTAGE"
GRADE: **

Bruce Willis is back in familiar territory here, starring in an action film that also has its fair share of tension and suspense.

Willis once again stars as a cop having a very bad day. As a smalltown police chief in California, Willis carries with him the baggage of his younger days as a hostage negotiator, when a decision he made personally while in a situation led to the deaths of three people, including a very young boy who died in his arms. He has fled from the pressure of the job, and took the chief's position thinking he wouldn't ever have to deal with that type of thing again. Wrong.

Due to circumstances beyond his control he is thrust back into a major hostage situation, after three punks take a family hostage in their fortress-like home with millions of dollars in cash inside. It turns out the father of the family has been illegally setting up off-shore accounts for some well-placed, powerful people, who don't exactly want their secrets exposed during a police situation.

Thus, Willis learns that his own wife and daughter have also been kidnapped, and he finds himself in a situation where he must break-up the hostage incident while also obtaining a DVD containing important info, before the other cops on scene do, or his own family will be killed. Just another day at the office.

The plot does get a bit ridiculous toward the end, and the ending itself simply wraps up too nicely, but it's good to see Willis back in the action genre again. He seems comfortable in this role, and it may be a precursor to him taking on the role of John McClane again this fall when shooting on 'Die Hard 4' reportedly begins.

SHORTTAKES

MOVIE:
"THE RING 2"

GRADE: **

This follow-up to 2002's most frightening film (The Ring) plays like a who's who-for abandoned horror-flick props and icons - one possessed TV set (Poltergeist), one demonic little boy (The Omen), one skeletal aging actress (Carrie) and one girl in urgent need of a shower (The Exorcist).

Only the always-engaging Naomi Watts and some intriguing directorial techniques from acclaimed Japanese auteur Hideo Nakata (Ringu) keep this sequel from seeming like another slapstick stab at the Scary Movie franchise.

Journalist Rachel Keller (Watts) would just as soon forget about the terrifying videotape that killed her son's father and released a bitter well-dwelling phantom (Kelly Stables and Daveigh Chase as Samara). She'd rather just enjoy her new job as editor of a small Oregon newspaper and spend time with her eerie child (David Dorfman as Aidan).

But there wouldn't be many jolts in The Ring Two: Rachel Takes a Vacation, so let's get to the good stuff.

When Rachel learns of a homicide that has obvious similarities to past events, she realizes Samara is back and is even more upset than before. Plus, Samara apparently decided that videotapes were passé and now plans to possess Aidan in the hopes of making Rachel her mommy dearest.

The Ring led to sleepless nights by bringing the audience into its petrifying premise. When we're forced to sit with Rachel and watch the deadly footage, there's a subtle fear that we might be the next victims. The VCR industry can officially blame Samara for its final demise.

But The Ring Two aban-dons audience involvement, instead relying on common scare tactics and a more intimate storyline. Watts delivers another excellent performance, despite a lackluster screenplay hardly worth her talents.

MOVIE:
"BLACK CLOUD"
GRADE: ***

Age-old clichés and time-honored sentimentality fall away in actor Rick Schroder's exceptionally impressive writing and directing debut, "Black Cloud," the story of a young Native American and his determined quest to find peace and redemption through boxing.

Up-and-comer Eddie Spears stars as Black Cloud, a Navajo youth struggling to cope with the mixed-up feelings of reservation life. When his emotions are channeled into the boxing ring, he's unbeatable. When his frustrations are released elsewhere, he invariably gets himself into trouble. For Black Cloud's mentor and father figure, Bud (Russell Means), the greatest challenge isn't so much teaching the boy how to fight others, but to stop fighting himself. Indeed, Black Cloud often doesn't seem to appreciate the best things in his life, particularly the devotion of long-suffering girlfriend Sammi (Julia Jones), a single mother whose previous relationship with a hell-raising rodeo cowboy (Schroder) proves to be a much greater stumbling block for Black Cloud than for her. It's only after an Olympic scout (Peter Greene) offers him a chance at making the U.S. Olympic team that he's forced to finally take stock of his life and confront his demons.

It's a risk when a story is framed around the sport of boxing, because comparisons to both "Rocky" and "Raging Bull" become inevitable, and rarely turn out favorably for the contenders. But Schroder's film more than holds its own, its dazzling, it's DIFFERENT By How?

There are seven differences in the second picture. Can you spot them?
ANSWERS: DRESS, EAR, LAMP, CHAIR LEG, LAMP SHADE, CHAIR, TAIL

gut-wrenching fight sequences contrasted with an earnest, sensitively-acted drama. This is a passion project for Schroder - a personal, heartfelt ode to the human spirit and its infinite capacity to triumph against seemingly insurmountable odds. Even jaded sports film snobs are likely to find this effort both richly rewarding and profoundly inspirational. MOVIE:

"BE COOL"
GRADE: **

John Travolta tries to end his string of recent big screen flops by resurrecting one of the better characters he has played over his career, but it's just not enough to save the film.

Travolta reprises his role of former Mob shylock Chili Palmer from 'Get Shorty', a hit movie adaptation of an Elmore Leonard novel from the early 1990s. This sequel finds Palmer looking to get out of the movie business and into the music industry, which he finds contains even more characters, ranging from former Mob hitmen running record labels to gangsta rap producers kidnapping radio program directors to force them to play their records.

When Palmers friend (played by James Woods) is killed in a hit by the Russian mob, he attempts to run the man's record label with his widow (played by Uma Thurman). Palmer sets out to get a contract for an up and coming young singing sensation, played by Christina Milian, but first he must get her contract from the promoters she currently toils for, another former Mob type played by Harvey Keitel and a white boy who thinks he's a gangsta rappa (think Vanilla Ice with even less street credentials), played by Vince Vaughn.

Vaughn and wrestling hero The Rock (who plays Vaughn's gay bodyguard who really just wants to act) are the best parts about the movie. Local music fans will recognize the Tweeter Center in Mansfield, ing on the Prevost Body, which Leva said is called "the million mile bus" because it can go long periods without servicing if needed.

The Center's driver, Deputy David Winkowski noted that the bus is equipped with a 250 gallon diesel gas tank, which is more than most long-haul trucks carry. The fuel is used to power the on-board generators and can last for up to two weeks without refueling.

These same on board generators can then be used to provide emergency power to areas that have lost it. If a police or fire department has been involved in a loss of electrical or telephone power, the command center can restore them to communications within an hour of arrival and provide power to the building.

When not in use, the Command Center is stored at the Action Ambulance Dispatch Center in Wilmington, and as part of the agreement, the ambulance company, which serves most of the communities in the Middlesex East area, can plug into the emergency power if their command center goes dark.

According to Lawhorne, "The important thing is the cooperation and inter-operability this provides."

He noted that Sheriff DiPaola has recently become a full partner in NEMLEC and that law enforcement operation now has full use of the command center in its operations.

Bob Franke at Linden Tree this Saturday

WAKEFIELD - The twentieth season of acoustic music at the Linden Tree Coffeehouse in downtown Wakefield will open with nationally renowned recording artist Bob Franke on Saturday, April 2.

Also, up-and-coming performer John Schindler will open the night of music, which will begin at 8:00 p.m.

Franke is among the best contemporary singer-songwriters who can make audience members sit in awe of the beauty of one song, and five minutes later, he's got the entire room laughing at a humorous tune.

As he returns for the second time to the Linden Tree stage, Franke is now celebrating 35 years as a folk music performer. At the peak of his career, Franke appears at festivals, music camps and folk clubs in the United States and abroad.

Many of the songs from his six albums have been recorded by others on the national folk scene, including Peter, Paul and Mary, Sally Rogers and John McCutcheon.

Opening for Bob Franke will be the 2004 winner of the Boston Folk Festival's Songwriting Contest, John Schindler.

This St. Louis, Missouri native grew up just a few blocks from the Mississippi river and he absolutely fell in love with that town's rhythm and blues. This funky start was drastically tempered early on by a nine-year stint in a Catholic seminary, where gregorian chants served as his daily form of music.

One of the Linden Tree Coffeehouse's final shows of the season will be held on Saturday, April 16, with a performance from the legendary Geoff Muldaur and Wakefield's famous Blunt Instruments.

The season finale will feature the talented Jack Williams and The Late Bloomers.

Notably, Linden Tree fans can now purchase "Under the Linden Tree," an album which was specially produced by Deb Feinn to mark the coffeehouse's twentieth season.

The Linden Tree Coffeehouse is located in the social hall of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Wakefield, located at 326 Main Street in downtown Wakefield (located directly across the street from the post office.)

Tickets are $12 per person and they can be purchased at the door beginning half an hour before the start of the 8:00 o'clock show.

Homemade baked goods and beverages will be available for purchase before the show begins and during the intermission.

For more information, or to make reservations for an upcoming Linden Tree Coffeehouse performance, call 781-246-2836 or e-mail LindenTree85@comcast.net

WHAT TIME IS IT?

Always timely in North Reading

"Three years may have passed since the anthrax scare that followed the terrorist attacks of September 11, but the United States Postal Service has continued to work since then to prevent acts of terrorism," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"A new system designed to detect anthrax and other potentially dangerous pathogens in the mail has been installed at the U.S. Postal Service's Middlesex/Essex Mail Processing Center on North Main Street in North Reading. All mail to and from Wilmington and Tewksbury passes through this North Reading facility."

"Since May, the system, officially called Biohazard Detection System (BDS), has been installed in approximately 100 mail processing centers across the nation. By the end of 2005, all 283 mail processing centers in the United States will have a BDS installed."

"BDS involves a device affixed to all the machines in a mail processing center. When activated, the system then continuously collects air samples in the immediate area while mail is being processed through the machines. BDS then analyzes those samples; an alarm sounds in the event that anthrax or other kinds of hazardous materials are detected."

"The Postal Service emphasizes that the system is not being installed due to any current or imminent threat of terrorist biological attack," says Bob Cannon, a spokesperson for the United States Postal Service...."

Minute by minute in Wilmington

"Five cruisers within the Wilmington Police Department now feature state-of-the-art medical defibrillators, prompting the question of whether officers should receive additional pay to use them," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"The defibrillators were purchased with grant money and were installed in the cruisers following the training of all Wilmington officers and the establishment of policies and procedures."

"Police officers, while out on patrol, are oftentimes the first to respond to a call for medical aid. The timely administering of appropriate treatment is generally the difference between life and death for a victim of cardiac arrest."

"According to Dr. Mark Gendreau of the Lahey Clinic, Sudden Cardiac Death strikes 350,000 Americans each year, with a survival rate of only about 2 percent. It often strikes a person in their 40's or 50's with no prior indication of any heart problems."

"For each minute without a defibrillator, the victim's chance of survival decreases by 15 to 20 percent," Gendreau said. "The survival rate on television dramas is almost 100 percent, but it is quite the opposite in real life."

"The defibrillators cost approximately $2,200 each and are identical to ones used by the Wilmington Fire Department. The defibrillators contain a micro computer card which analyzes the rhythm of the patient's heart rate, records the treatment, and creates a report similar to an EKG. It advises whether to shock or to administer CPR."

"Wilmington Police Chief Robert Spencer hopes to be able to raise funds enough to add a couple more to his department in the near future."

"I view these defibrillators strictly as an extension of the training we already have in the area of First Response and CPR," Chief Spencer said. "They are very simple to use effectively...."

"Town Manager Michael Caira applauds Spencer and his entire department for the implementation."

"The defibrillators enhance our ability to provide life-saving services to the residents of the town and to those who visit and do business in town," Caira said...."

Perfect timing in Lynnfield

"Town Administrator Bill Gustus received high grades in his job performance evaluation by the Board of Selectmen this week as he is set to begin his third year with the town," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

and hopefully the pay hike will keep him in Lynnfield. Selectman Chairman Marc Miller said other municipalities are aware of the fine job Gustus is doing in Lynnfield and he continues to receive other job offers, many at significantly higher pay.

"Gustus also received a near-perfect performance review a year ago and at the six-months point of his employment. Performance reviews are a part of the reorganization of the town government implemented by the Selectmen which also includes an incentive pay plan and specific goals for department managers.

"The evaluation and rating system developed by the Selectmen includes 40 performance standards done individually by the Selectmen with each metric rated from a low of one to a high score of four which is then consolidated into one report. The review also includes a self-evaluation submitted to the Selectmen by Gustus.

"Miller said Gustus scored a total of 156 out of a total of 160 for an average of 3.92 on the four point scale.

"Miller told Gustus, 'While you're very good, you're not quite perfect.' He said Selectman Harry Le Cours gave Gustus a 'very, very high' score, while he and Selectman Bob MacKendrick were a little bit lower, with MacKendrick, who was elected to the board last April, being the toughest critic of the three.

"Gustus received perfect scores in self direction, interpersonal skills, work standards, technical/professional knowledge, problem solving - decision making and organization...."

Boating & You

Things to know before you go

by Tom Lucet

Mail, phone calls, press releases and announcements - gotta love them all! The releases serve as an invite to an array of boating and outdoor shows and activities throughout the Boston area.

This winter, I had the opportunity to bring along a "land lover" friend to the Boston Boat Show. And since he had never attended such a massive indoor exposition, he explained that he never realized that there were so many types and styles of power and sail boats on the market. And the local boat show displayed only a fraction of the models which can be seen at some of the larger shows that are held in New York City and Miami.

Another wonderful exposition that was recently held was the Greater North Shore Chamber of Commerce Business Expo at the Ferncroft Hotel in Danvers.

Booth-hoppers may have encountered one particularly interesting display, where Captain Michael Rutstein, of Pennant Enterprises of Boxford, provided consultations on boating issues.

He advised Middlesex East readers, "Warmer weather is on the way and you should begin planning now to come aboard my Essex-built schooner, which is a replica of the vessels built circa the War of 1812."

Pennant Enterprises offers daily sailing cruises from May through August. For additional information on rates, sailings or for directions, contact Michael Rutstein by calling 978-729-7600.

In other news, a new boating business, Bosun's Marine, is now open on the northbound side of Route One.

e-Pro designation for Meg Michaels

RE/MAX Top Achievers agent Meg Michaels has received her Realtor e-Pro designation, which now enables her to provide clients with state-of-the-art technology services.

As more and more consumers search for real estate-related information on the internet, it's critical that professionals in the real estate be well-educated when it comes to the use of technology.

Realizing the importance of technology training, the National Association of Realtors (NAR) now offers its members the e-Pro certification course, which is the only such program that is currently offered by NAR.

The program is intended to prepare real estate professionals to make the most of the internet technology, while also equipping them with the know-how needed to identify, evaluate and implement new internet business models. The elite group of course graduates represents only one percent of all realtors in the country and that one percent now includes local realtor Meg Michaels.

Today, more than seventy percent of all buyers and sellers look for homes online. The e-Pro certified agents have both the knowledge and the tools needed to provide information and customer service that buyers and sellers demand; in short, it's both high-tech and high-touch.

The e-Pro certification course is an educational program unlike any other professional certification or designation course available, as it's quite comprehensive and interactive. The course is specifically designed to provide agents with the technology tools needed to assist a client in the purchase and sale of a home.

The exclusive e-Pro designation course is presented entirely online and it's used to certify real estate agents and brokers, alike.

The e-Pro certified real estate professional joins the ranks of a special community of highly skilled and continuously trained professionals who provide high quality and innovative online-based real estate services. Consumers can identify the e-Pro through the exclusive e-Pro Internet Professional logo.

RE/MAX Top Achievers' Meg Michaels can be contacted at the agency's Reading office, located at 100 Main Street by calling 781-944-6060, extension 40, or by sending an e-mail to megmichaels@remax.net

Michaels also has a website which can be accessed by logging onto www.megmichaels.com

Set the Stage for Better Rates!

Don't wait to refinance—mortgage rates are still low!

Our experienced Home Mortgage Consultants will do a quick analysis to see if you would benefit from:

- An interest rate refinance that would lower monthly payments
- A term reduction that would pay off your home more quickly and save thousands in interest payments
- A refinance from an ARM or balloon to a safe, predictable fixed-rate
- A cash-out refinance to put your home's equity at your disposal for debt consolidation, home improvements, etc.

We offer personal service, quick decisions, a broad menu of mortgage options and little or no documentation to those who qualify.

You need to act fast...before rates rise again.
